TWO AVIATORS DRAW CLOSE TO ANOTHER RECORD

Stinson and Haldeman in Air For More Than Forty Hours

5,000 FEET HIGH

Weather Reports Indicate The Coming of Sharp Winds

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Mar. 30.—Eddie Stinson and George Haldeman today established a new endurance record in their monoplane. Stinson and Haldeman landed at 1.20 eastern standard time, after being in the air 52 hours and 37 minutes.

The aviators broke the previous record held by Germany for endurance flight by one hour and 14 minutes. The previous record was 52 hours and 23 minutes.

When the plane was brought down, five gallons of gasoline remained in the tanks.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Mar. 30—(INS)—Eddie Stinson and George Haldeman, in their big Stinson-Detroiter monoplane, drew close to a new world's endurance record this morning as they droned up and down the Beach at the altitude of 5,000 feet.

Midnight marked more than forty hours in the air for the big monoplane. The record is now 52 hours, established by two Germans. Stinson and Haldeman plan to stay aloft at least 55 hours.

A message dropped on the sands of the beach announced that, owing to the humidity of the air, the fliers would seek an altitude of at least 5,000 feet for the remainder of the test, hoping thereby to conserve their gasoline supply. The latter, according to A. Lupole, Wright motor expert attending the airmen, would quickly be consumed through the heat of the motor at a lower level.

Weather reports indicated that within the next few hours the big Stinson-Detroiter monoplane would encounter rougher sailing. For the first half of their flight, Stinson and Haldeman could not have asked for better climatic conditions, 75 sharp winds are reported on the way, winds that, to combat, will mean greater usage of fuel.

Previous arrangements had been made for the plane to come to earth at the municipal airport, but today it was ascertained that the rules of the National Aeronatuic Society made it obligatory to alight from the starting field, in this instance the beach. By early afternoon, the weather at the Beach will be at high tide and due care will be exercised by the beach patrol to provide ample room for the landing.

Dahlia Association Members Enjoy Fine Program

The monthly meeting of the Dahlia Association last evening in Trades Hall found 40 members and a number of guests present.

Following the transaction of business the members were entertained with talks on how to grow flowers. Miss Eunice Williams gave some valuable information on how to arrange flowers to bring out their beauty, and Arthur Seyfert wove his remarks about the growing of dahlias. The care of hardy plants and how to protect them from severe winter weather was spoken of by Richard Abbott.

The group was given an opportunity to ask questions and these were readily answered. A pamphlet on "How to Grow Gladioli" was furnished each member. Vocal and piano solos by John Brehm and Mr. Rosser, respectively, were thoroughly enjoyed. The surprise of the evening was a sketch entitled "Your Own Back Yard," performed by Mrs. Glenn Thompson and Miss Gertrude Johnson, and this elicited much laughter and applause.

Those present were high in their praise for the program outlined by the entertainment committee. Sixteen prizes were given, consisting of cut flowers, potted plants, bulbs, tubers, etc. Refreshments were served. Favors of miniature potted plants were given.

CELEBRITY CLUB OF LANGHORNE HIGH HAS AUTOGRAPHS OF 28 WELL-KNOWN MEN; PEPPER SENDS A UNIQUE VERSE

Association Boasts No Officers But Each Member Does His Part — Six Clubs in Building Are Quite Active

LANGHORNE, Mar. 30—There are to be found within the halls of the Langhorne high school a group of clubs that have attracted more than ordinary interest and elicited a greater share of enthusiasm than usual on the part of the student body.

The list includes what is known as the Celebrity Club, the members of which have been successful during the past few months of securing from well-known political and financial figures their signatures.

Speaking today of this unique club, with which many of the students of the high school are affiliated, William A. Thomas, principal, remarked: "The object of this club is to create an interest in prominent individuals, so the interest of the members regarding current events will grow." Continuing to tell of the aims and results of the organization, which by the way has no officers, he stated that each individual member does all in his power to further the interest of the club, thus eliminating the need for officers.

"If a member desires to secure signatures of a certain man, the name of said celebrated individual is listed at the school to avoid duplication of requests. Two cards are then sent by the pupil to the one in question, and when these are returned with the autopraphs on each, the student retains one and the other goes into the possession of the club," he added.

When the club first organized it was decided that only champions in sports were to be discussed. Soon the club branched out and the members came to the conclusion it would be wise to make a study of famous men. Those affiliated felt that, if they could obtain the signatures and clip pictures from various papers and magazines, their knowledge of current events would be extended.

A start was made by obtaining the signatures of local men, then State and national celebrities were secured. To every request the group was fortunate enough to get an almost immediate reply.

One of the prized possessions is a piece of poetry written by George Wharton Pepper, ex-senator from Pennsylvania. It follows:

"Celebrity" isn't my name:
On greatness I haven't a claim,
But an autograph surely
Will fix me securely
In Langhorne's bright Temple of Fame!
—George Wharton Pepper.

The following autographs have been received:

Clarence J. Buckman, State Senator of 10th District; Ralph H. Cameron, Senator of New Jersey; Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War; Charles G. Dawes, Vice-President of United States; Jack Delaney, heavyweight boxing contestant; "Army" Fitzgerald, captain of the world's champion, Camden "Jaspers" basketball team; Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce; Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State; Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House of Representatives; Connie Mack, manager of Philadelphia Athletics; Harry A. Mackey, mayor of Philadelphia; William A. March, Colonel, 108th Field Artillery; Andrew W Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury; Harry S. New, Postmaster General; George Wharton Pepper, Ex-Senator of Pennsylvania; Major General William G. Price, Jr., commander of 28th Division and president of Union League of Philadelphia; David Aiken Reed, U. S. Senator of Pennsylvania; Lawson A. Robertson, track coach at the University of Pennsylvania and head coach of the Olympic games; Knute Rockne, head coach at Notre Dame; Capt. Godfrey Y. Rodrigues, correct posture exponent of "Philadelphia Bulletin;" John G. Sargent, Attorney General; Joey Schaaf, captain of Pennsylvania basketball team; William Howard Taft, Ex-President of United States and present Chief Justice of Supreme Court; Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world; William S. Vare, U. S. Senator-elect of Pennsylvania; Henry G. Watson, Congressman of 9th District; Joseph H. Yates, University of Pennsylvania varsity baseball and varsity basketball; Sabin Carr, Yale, world's vault champion.

During the year, pupils have brought in objects of interest. Among them are: A cane autographed by Benny Bass; baseball autographed by Babe Ruth; piece of metal from the Shenandoah; autographed picture of Jackie Coogan; an invitation from President Coolidge to a reception; bronze plaque from the battleship, "Maine."

The other five clubs housed within the walls of Langhorne High are: Picture study, electrical, mathematics, stenography and newspaper.

The Picture Study club has studied the lives of Raphael, Michael Angelo, Leonardo da Vinci and Titian. Their well known pictures include: "The Sistine Madonna," "The Madonna of the Chair," "Mona Lisa," "The Last Supper," "The Holy Family" and Watts's "Sir Galahad."

This group is planning to study the life and works of Millet and the club members are going to make collections of small copies of the famous pictures which they are studying.

At present the members of the Electrical Club are making a radio set, most of the parts of which have been contributed, and have established telephone communications between the principal's office on the third floor and the physics room on the first floor.

SPECIALTIES ENJOYED AT "GYM" EXHIBITION

Clarence Spohn and Six Boys Give Burlesque on Some Numbers

A SPLENDID PROGRAM

An addition made to the program of the health education program at the high school gymnasium last evening in the form of a burlesque specialty brought forth much applause from the large number gathered.

Clarence Spohn, a member of the high school faculty had under his direction six boys, who in a most humorous way mimicked the dumbbell and wand drills of the evening, as well as some of the dances. The young men, whose part on the program was the cause of much hilarity, were: Michael DeRisi, Martin Schiffer, Clarence Young, Fabian Still, John Lynn and Lewis Harris.

The program, which was under the personal direction of Miss Mary Fine and Kenneth L. Townsend, who are in charge of the physical education work at the high school, was as follows:

The second part of the program included apparatus work on the parallel bars and vaulting horse, by the boys; apparatus work—parallel bars, horse and buck, by the girls. The boys' work in this section was group and special exercises.

SATTLER BRINGS ACTION AGAINST OFFICER HUGHES

More Police Friction is Being Aired in County Court

ONE BILL IS IGNORED

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 30—More police friction between officers of Bensalem and Bristol township was aired in the Court of Common Pleas yesterday when a jury awarded Howard R. Sattler, of Croydon, a verdict of $250 in his suit for $5000 against H. Lincoln Hughes, former township police officer of Bensalem township. Sattler, a gasoline station proprietor, was a former officer of Bristol township.

Sattler sued Hughes for loss of good name and reputation that he alleged resulted from a malicious criminal prosecution brought against him by Hughes a year ago. The Grand Jury before whom the case was presented in criminal court, ignored the bill against Sattler, who then started action against Hughes. Sattler was

LIGHTNING WRECKS CHURCH; PASTOR HURT

FIREMEN JUST ESCAPE

SELLERSVILLE, Mar. 30—The New Jerusalem Lutheran and Reformed Church, at Almont, a rural community two miles west of this place, was destroyed by fire last night while an electrical storm swept the North Penn Valley. Rev. Elmer S. Kidd, Lutheran pastor of the church, was entering the building as lightning struck the steeple and entered the basement at the same time. He was hurled from the doorway into the churchyard and was stunned, but soon was revived.

At the same time lightning struck the store building and dwelling of E. F. Markley nearby and for a time it was feared that the entire village of a dozen houses would be destroyed. Neighbors formed a bucket brigade and succeeded in extinguishing the blaze at the Markley building.

The flames quickly spread through the church, and the interior was soon a mass of flames before firemen from Perkasie, Sellersville and Silverdale arrived at the scene. The firemen were hindered by lack of water, but managed to keep the blaze from spreading by the use of chemicals. While the fire was in progress the heavy steeple, containing the church bell, crashed to the ground and narrowly missed striking several Sellersville firemen.

Pastor Kidd had gone to the church from his home in Sellersville to prepare the building for a rehearsal of the Easter exercises which were to have taken place tonight. Frank Wenhold, the janitor, had built a fire in the heater an hour earlier so that the church would be warm for the event.

A remarkable phase of the blaze was the miraculous escape of the Lutheran pastor's wife and two children, Betty and Paul, and Miss Dorothy Kopp, of Sellersville, who had just alighted from their automobile to enter the church when the edifice was struck and the bolt hurled tons of slate about them.

MAN KILLED INSTANTLY AT P. R. R. STATION HERE AS HE WAITS FOR TRAIN BOUND FOR PHILADELPHIA

E. H. Williams, of Edgely, Father of Two Children, Meets Sudden Death — Body Horribly Mangled But Identification Has Been Made by Father-in-Law, George W. Lefferts

A man was killed instantly this morning at the P. R. R. passenger station here when struck by a fast express as it thundered along the rails at a high rate of speed.

The dead:

H. E. Williams, 36, Edgely.

Williams, so far as could be learned by an early investigation, was the only person on the west bound platform at the time of the accident. His body was seen to fly through the air by John Sullivan, P. R. R. labor foreman who has charge of the track work in and around Bristol. Sullivan was standing on the eastbound side at the time and on going to the other side of the tracks found the man's body lying alongside of the rails.

The body was so horribly mangled that identification was almost impossible at first. Deputy Coroner W. Furman Young was called and upon arrival searched the clothing and found a commutation ticket on which was inscribed "H. E. Williams." The ticket was issued from Edgely to Philadelphia and was sold here at the Bristol station February 21, 1928. It was good until August 21, 1928.

Written across the back of the ticket with lead pencil and in neat handwriting was this message: "In case of accident call Geo. W. Lefferts, Bristol 14."

A gold watch and chain, fountain pen and some small change was found in the man's pockets.

Word was at once dispatched to Mr. Lefferts and he came to Bristol and identified the effects as those of his son-in-law. They reside together on the Bristol pike opposite the property of Thomas G. Hawkes.

The deceased has a wife and two children, one aged 10 and one 4. At the present time Williams was not employed, according to his father-in-law.

The 9.14 westbound train had left Bristol and it is thought that perhaps Williams had gotten off of it. There was no other westbound train due until 10.08. As near as could be learned Williams must have been killed at about 9.25 by a flier which is known among railroad men as train No. 215. The flier was westbound and traveling very fast. Williams apparently was standing near the elevator shaft when the accident occurred.

Mr. Lefferts ordered the body removed to the morgue of the H. S. Rue Estate.

No theory has been constructed as to how Williams met his death. Whether he was standing too near the edge of the platform and was hit by the passing locomotive or whether he was opposite the elevator shaft and the draft of the passing flier drew him beneath the wheels is not known.

YALE STUDENTS HERE ON INSPECTION TOUR

PLEASED WITH VISIT

Eighty-two students from the Sheffield Scientific School at Yale University visited the plant of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation this morning. The students are on an inspection tour of various plants throughout the country. All of those in the delegation today are senior students and were accompanied by Prof. H. L. Seward.

Prof. H. L. Sward.

The party was met at the P. R. R. station here by a reception committee from the Keystone plant headed by Stanley W. Jacques, test pilot of the local firm. Jacques is a Yale man, being a member of the class of 1918.

When the visitors reached the Keystone plant they were greeted by Edgar N. Gott, the president, who addressed words of welcome to them. Vice-President C. Talbot Porter also welcomed the group. Mr. Porter is also a Yale graduate of the class 1909.

The party was then divided into groups of 15 and escorted through the various departments of the big airplane plant. Upon leaving Bristol this afternoon the students will dine at the Penn Athletic Club, Philadelphia, and later visit the U. S. Navy Yard.

The students were keenly interested in the Keystone plant here and carefully examined the construction of the various planes. They marveled at the huge floor space of 140,000 square feet and found the main building 1,000 feet long and 100 feet wide by 35 feet in clear to under side of roof trusses.

The latest type of construction is used at the Keystone plant being chrome molybdenum welded steel tubular fuselages and tail surfaces. Wings—wood, covered with fabric.

The students were taken through the following departments:

Engineer, receiving and stock room, wood storage and mill, wing fabrication, machine shop, planning, fuselage, inspection, sheet metal, covering, doping and assembly.

INDOMITABLE NATURE

Man has made such sport of nature that he becomes bewildered and frightened when the elements retaliate. He is better able to harness nature and turn natural forces to his own use, but a century or two ago he was better equipped materially and spiritually for the assaults nature engineers every once in a while.

Millions were spent to hold back the flood waters of the Mississippi river. But just when man thought he had the mighty river where he wanted her she went on a rampage and caused, within the brief period of a few days, damage in excess of the sums expended to prevent such a catastrophe.

It was a man-made dam that harnessed the water power of San Francisquito canyon and man's handiwork was in evidence throughout the beautiful Santa Clara River valley, but nature in a whimsical mood shattered the harness and wiped out the handiwork in a fraction of the time it took man to build.

Then there was the isolation of Detour, a Michigan village of 600 inhabitants, by a snowstorm. The residents no doubt considered themselves suburban dwellers. Roads, telephones and airplanes were available to keep them in communication with the rest of the world. They believed themselves to be as close to civilization and its benefits as the residents of the largest city. Nature used fifteen feet of snow to prove to Detour that it is still at her mercy and subject to her will.

THE 1928 EDITOR

The newspaper editor of the Greeley and Dana tradition, the personal kind of editor, known heart and soul if not by countenance to every last subscriber, has long since passed from the cities of the United States.

The metropolitan newspaper has grown too big, too all-embracing, too industrialized to permit one name to guide its destiny and be a watchword in the households it enters.

Time was when newspaper responsibility was so highly individualized that the irate subscriber might come to the office with a stout cane and unerringly thump the right party. In the West's early days pistol duels made libel suits unnecessary. Nowadays the aggrieved reader at best eases his mind by writing a letter addressed vaguely to "the editor," that composite entity that works like a linotype.

But out in the smaller towns where neighbor knows neighbor the newspaper editor still remains the same important personage that his predecessors were fifty and even a hundred years ago. Day unto day he gives account of his stewardship to his subscribers. Often they swear at him, but oftener they swear by him, and either way bespeaks the strong personal tie that binds them to him and him to them.

It is because they are unmistakable in their meaning and the gospel of public truth to the whole community that the editorials of the country editor sway and guide their readers as the impersonal editorials of the big city dailies cannot.

Blessed are the poor. They get up early enough to enjoy these beautiful mornings.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Mar. 30—(INS)—Rather than accept a prize cup she knew she had not won, Alberta MacNamee, who had been declared spelling champion of Hatfield Consolidated school informed instructors that the teacher who inspected her examination paper had overlooked two misspelled words.

As a result it was found that the girl's average was one-fourth of a point lower than that of Minnie Silverman, and the latter was awarded the cup.

HARRISBURG, Mar. 30—(INS)—Importation of seedling apple, plum, pear, cherry and nut trees, rose plants and grape cuttings from foreign countries to Pennsylvania exceeded 600,000 in the past year, the State Department of Agriculture announced today.

The importations are seedlings and plants sent to Pennsylvania nurserymen who in turn graft and bud their own varieties on the foreign stock.

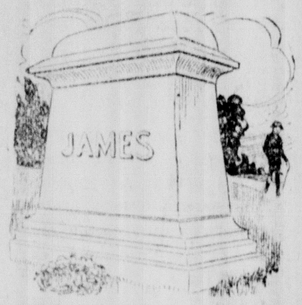

Because of the danger of bringing in foreign diseases and pests a law was passed in 1919 prohibiting further importation of nursery stock except tree seedlings and roses. Nevertheless the importations permitted are examined at destinations by State Nursery inspectors.

As a result of the limitation on the foreign importations they are being reduced each year. Officials of the Department estimate that by 1930 the nursery industry in Pennsylvania will be able to procure sufficient supplies in this country.

Last year seven foreign countries contributed to the Pennsylvania importations. France supplied the most of the stock while England was a close second. Canada, Germany, Holland, Ireland and Hungary also sent stock. More than 100,000 rose plants were imported from Holland and 67,000 from Ireland.

HARRISBURG, Mar. 30—(INS)—Be sure your grocer gives you only fresh catsup, the Pennsylvania Department cautions in a special warning today.

Catsup deteriorates quickly, the department said, and is unfit for food after fermentation begins. The bureau of foods and chemistry recently brought several prosecutions against dealers who were selling catsup unfit for food. In each case a fine of $60 was imposed.

DOROTHY SHOPPE

Mill Street at Radcliffe

HARRISBURG, Mar. 30—(INS)—Requests for new and renewal of camp site leases indicate that the present year will exceed all previous records, officials of the Department of Forests and Waters said today. Last year the leases produced $16,261 in rentals.

The buildings on the 1,840 camp sites have a total value of $1,714,730. The Delaware Forest District located in Pike and Monroe counties leads in the number of camp buildings, having 460, with a total value of $415,000, or an average of $902 per building. The Moshannon Forest District, located in Clearfield and Elk counties, has 205 camp buildings with a total value of $438,850, or an average value of $1,755.40 each. The Michaux State Forest located in Franklin and Cumberland counties has 150 camps with a total value of $207,250, or an average value of $1,381.60.

The average value of camp site buildings ranges from $400 on the Tuscarora Forest District to $1,755.40 on the Moshannon Forest District. The type of building which the lessee may erect on a camp site must meet with the approval of the Department of Forests and Waters, but this does not mean that only expensive buildings may be erected. The type of construction varies from simple frame and metallic structures to log cabins, camps of stone and stucco. The most highly valued camp building is a stone structure on the Bald Eagle Forest District near Mifflinburg, valued at $20,000.

The majority of the camp sites under lease are held by individuals and hunting and fishing clubs. Other organizations which hold leases are Boy and Girl Scouts, Y. M. C. A.'s, Y. W. C. "THE JAZZ SINGER," starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. It is based upon the play by Samson Raphaelson.

SYNOPSIS

Cantor Rabinowitz has trained his son, Jakie, to sing the Hebrew songs of the Synagogue. On the Eve of the Day of Atonement he finds Jakie singing ragtime in a "beer garden." He whips the child and Jakie runs away. Ten years elapse. Jakie, now Jack Robin, a jazz singer, down on his luck, meets Mary Dale, a dancer, who obtains a part for him in her vaudeville act. Mary returns to New York to star in a musical comedy. She wires Jack, offering him a part in the show. He returns home first, but the Cantor hears him playing jazz and orders him out.

"Did you heard how he sang?" the Cantor muttered. "The same like I taught him in the Synagogue—the same he used to sing to God—now he sings jazz." He stretched his hand forth on the table and picked up the prayer shawl dully. "A fine birthday present I got. Bought with dirty money made from the theayter. Burn it! Burn it!" He thrust the shawl from him with loathing.

"Yosele, you're breaking my heart—and its today your birthday. And I tried to be so happy."

"Happy! Happy! With a son like that!"

"Sure! Ain't it I'm trying to smile?" Mrs. Rabinowitz made a

pitiful attempt, but her voice broke. "Ain't it you are mine man—my Cantor?"

"Sara, you are a good wife, and you were a good mother—but you don't deserve such a son as you got."

The Cantor buried his face in his arms on the table.

CHAPTER XI

Uptown in the Fulton Theatre the drab reality of a rehearsal was in progress. Four and twenty chorus girls backgrounded by nothing more inspiring than folded scenery leaning disinterestedly against dusty brick walls and gowned in nothing more provocative than blouses and trunks, bathing suits and regulation rehearsal rompers gyrated through their routine steps with lackadaisical precision. An upright piano to one side of the stage, before which was seated a musician, ground out a jazz tune over and over and over again until it lost heart and settled down into a monotonous jangling.

Out of the dim blackness of the auditorium rose rumblings of conversation, which meant that the author, the lyricist, the producer, the backer and the stars were each standing up for what he considered his rights. Stage hands in shirt sleeves lounged against the proceniun arch. Tiny flickers of lighted cigarettes rose and fell. Stale cigar smoke mingled with the odors of scrub women and soapy water. An old doorman with feet propped up on a bit of painted rock pulled dispiritedly on an unlighted pipe. "No smoking" signs hung disgruntled behind the rope lines of curtains and drops.

In and out, round and about, back and forth, across the stage the four and twenty girls moved, making vague attempts at shaking a tantalizing hip. But their only success seemed to lie in rousing a tantalized ballet master.

"For the love of Pete! Stop! Stop!" The girls halted wearily. The music rambled on. Jim Sparks, coatless, sleeves uprolled, hair standing on end, leaped up from the orchestra pit over the footlights and on to the stage. "Shut that damned music off," he yelled. The pianist swung round on his stool and nonchalantly lighted a cigarette.

"Say, where th' hell do you think you are! At a funeral! My God! You'd make the best set of mourners I ever saw. A bunch of corpses! Put some pep in it. Shake yourself! Look here! Watch this!"

The chorus girls lounged to an indifferent attention while Sparks, humming the tune, twirled and pirouetted before them. He wriggled his hips; he fluttered his hands; he agitated his shoulders.

"Now, look!" he demanded. "Where it goes da-de-da-de-dade, move your right hip. Give it a quick jerk. Come on, try it again. Yeh, from the beginning," he turned to the pianist. "And come on you!" he included all the members of the chorus in a sweeping gesture. "Get some life into it—and don't be afraid of busting anything. Let's go!"

As the music started Sparks backed away and the girls once more took up the steps, but now with an added vigor and interest. He turned to nod with approval at the three persons who had recently appeared in the wings and stood watching the group on the stage.

"This ought to be a good number, Harry," Mary Dale, in practice rompers and ballet slippers, turned to the tall, rather heavy man beside her.

"Well, Sparks'll get it out of those girls if it's to be got." Harry Lee, the producer of "April Follies," chewed ruminantly on his cigar. "Say, you put that check through today, didn't you, Randy?" He turned to the immaculately dressed, slightly youngish man beside him.

"Yes, I've attended to all that. You can draw on it at any time now," Randolph Dillings, whose money was helping to make the show possible, assented. "But, good Lord, Harry, can't you speed up that chorus a bit? They don't look as though they were ever going to be ready for a production."

"They're all right. Don't worry about them. Sparks'll have that bunch hitting on all eight opening night, stepping high, wide and handsome. Sparks always trains them this way. I know. I've watched him work before," Lee assured his banker.

"Well, I don't want to interfere with your business," Dillings hastily protested. "You know best."

The three watched in silence the chorus work for a while. After a few moments Dillings turned his back so that Mary could not hear his words and spoke to Lee.

"Look here, Harry, what about that new comedian? Do you think that's going to work out all right?" he whispered.

Lee shrugged his shoulders. "I don't know. I'm taking a chance on him—we can always let him go if he doesn't look good, you know. And sometimes these finds are damned profitable. We've still got Carter up our sleeve, and he's good for carrying any amount of comedy—though it wouldn't be a bad idea at all to have some new stuff. Carter's getting a little worn out. He doesn't know it himself, and his name draws at the box office—but" —he shook his head—"it's new ideas we need."

"I suppose you're right. Well, I think I'll be running along," Dillings turned to Mary.

"Oh, why go so soon, Randy? I'm going into my scene in just a minute if you want to stay and watch that," Mary smiled.

"I'd like to, but if I'm going to back shows I have to attend to my own business," Dillings laughed. "Shall I call for you about five?"

"What time will rehearsal be over, Harry?" Mary asked Lee.

"Oh, around five, I suppose. I'm not going to keep anyone much longer than that. We've got enough time, and you've all been at it since eleven this morning."

"All right, then, Randy. I'll be ready at five. If you see Dad by any chance, tell him I'll be home later."

"Look here, Mary," Lee began nervously to consult his watch as soon as Dillings had disappeared, "it's about time that discovery of yours showed up. Do you know where he is?"

"Oh, he'll be along, all right. He just got in this afternoon, according to his wire, and I suppose he's gone to a hotel to change. I shouldn't worry."

"I know, but—well—I didn't want to do much talking in front of Randy for fear of getting him all upset, but are you sure that this chap can sing as well as Hal Bolton?"

"Look here, Harry, he's better than Bolton—a thousand times better. You won't be sorry you took my advice. I'll wager you on that. And he's got a lot better stuff that Bolton has, and he knows how to put it over better than Bolton. If you don't like him, you can always get Bolton back."

4¼ MILLION MILES OF BELL WIRE IN STATE

So Says Annual Report of Bell Telephone Co of Penna Just Released

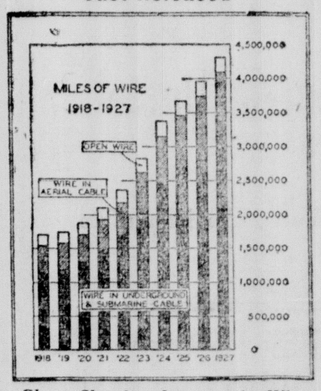

Chart Showing Increase in Wire Mileage Since 1918

At the end of the year there were 4,321,688 miles of Bell Telephone wire in use in the state, according to the Annual Report of The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania just released. This is enough to build eighteen complete single lines between the earth and the moon.

Of the total, 3,064,165 miles are in underground and submarine cable and 1,033,502 miles are contained in aerial cable. The remainder, or 224,021 miles, is open wire. It is the policy of the Bell System to use telephone lines protected by cable wherever the volume of telephone traffic makes their use economically practicable. The advantage in the use of cable lies in the fact that it is practically storm-proof and eliminates to a great degree interruptions to service from storm causes.

"Cable construction," says the report, "is being extended to the greatest practicable limit. In the toll wire plant these cables are now stretching across the state in all directions from the points to and from which the toll traffic is sizable."

During 1927, 182,368 miles of wire in toll cables were added to the plant of the Company. More than 75 per cent. of all toll cables between points in Pennsylvania, regardless of distance, are now routed entirely through cables.

GIRLS TO BE GIVEN PART IN BOYS' WEEK PROGRAM

Doylestown Organizations Plan Marble Shooting Contest for Girls

ARRANGE BIG PROGRAM

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 30.—Girls will not be forgotten in the annual Boys Week celebration in Doylestown this year. In session last night the committees representing the Rotary, Kiwanis, American Legion and the Moose Lodge, or the organizations sponsoring Boys' Week in this community, authorized the general chairman, N. F. Power, to arrange for a Doylestown marble shooting championship for girls this year.

Present plans call for a regular elimination shoot for girls, the same as for boys, with prizes to be awarded to the ward champions and the champion girl shooter of the town.

Boys' Week this year will start Sunday, April 29, and will continue for one week, including Saturday, May 5, when "Boy Day Out Doors" will be celebrated with the county marble championship to be decided in the morning and the athletic events for boys and girls in the afternoon on the Doylestown Fair grounds.

There was some intimation last night that another organization may turn in with those already behind the Boy Week movement. It was proposed that the Doylestown Merchants' Association be asked to co-operate and that J. Allen Gardy, general secretary of the Boy Week celebration, be authorized to interview the officers of the association concerning the proposition.

General Chairman Power again made it clear last night as he did a year ago, that every organization in town and every individual is asked to co-operate as much as possible in putting this annual project across in a commendable manner. The organizations back of Boy Week, he pointed out, are simply putting the movement across and doing the actual work, but they need the support of the entire community to make it a real success.

The week will officially start with "Boy Day in the Churches," with the plans in charge of Rev. Charles F. Freeman, pastor of Salem Reformed Church. "Boy Day in School," will be in charge of Carmon Ross, supervising principal of the local schools. Tuesday, May 1, will be "Loyalty Day," one of the big days of the week, with a parade of school children and various organizations of the town, led by the Doylestown High School band. HIP BROKEN IN CRASH; MAN SUES FOR DAMAGES

Three Cases Are Now Suited; Two Others Started In Court

LAUCHMAN CASE ENDS

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 30.—Trial started Wednesday in Common Pleas Court No. 2, before Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Stroudsburg, in the case of G. Wilmer Amey, of Richlandtown, against Fred Erb, of Philadelphia. The plaintiff is suing for a large amount for injuries alleged to have been sustained in a motor truck collision on the Bethlehem pike north of Sellersville, in which the plaintiff suffered a crushed hip and remained in a hospital for twenty weeks. Amey is permanently injured and walks with the aid of a crutch.

In the trial of the case Amey is represented by Harry E. Grim, of Perkasie, while Erb is represented by Senator Clarence J. Buckman, of Langhorne. A large number of witnesses have been called in the case that will take more than a day to try, in all probability.

In Court No. 1, before Judge William C. Ryan, a jury awarded Samuel Martz, L. Martz and Benjamin Martz, trading as the L. K. Thread Company, of New York City, a verdict of $295 in a suit brought against Samuel Greenberg, of Easton, and Granville Hollenbach, of Riegelsville, over a bill of goods purchased from the plaintiff.

It was announced that the case of Frank Spinella, of Bristol, against H. Fred Lanchman, of Lansdale, has been settled and marked off the trial list. Spinella and Lanchman were in an automobile accident on the Lincoln Highway. Both agreed on settlement.

Trial started in Court No. 1 before Judge Ryan in a suit brought by the Clymer Department Store, of Doylestown, against Joseph A. Wodock, of Doylestown, over the purchase of an electric washing machine.

Before Judge Shull in Court No. 2, three cases were non-suited and marked off the list. They included the following plaintiffs: Howard Garges, Jr., Fredericka Garges and Howard Garges against John L. Hinkle, of Sellersville. The suit was brought following an automobile accident on July 18, 1926, on the road between Levin and Chalfont. Upon motion by the defense counsel, Harry Grim, the case was non-suited.

The case of the Atlantic Refining Company against John and Katherine Weselyk was non-suited in Court No. 2 before Judge Shull.

It was announced that the case of Elwood F. Diehl against William H. Grauley and Charles H. Schaeffer, has been settled.

OVER A MILLION BELL TELEPHONES IN STATE

Million Mark Was Passed Early in 1927 According to Annual Report

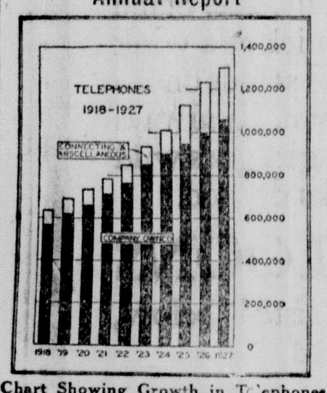

Chart Showing Growth in Telephones Since 1918

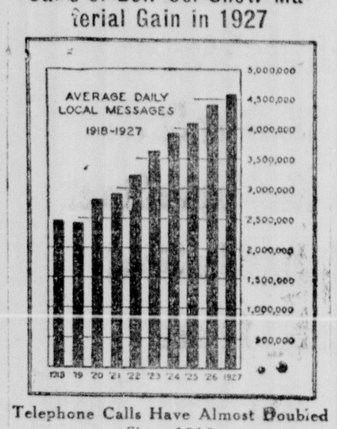

During 1927 there was a net increase of 63,241 Bell telephones in the state, according to the Annual Report of The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania just released. This figure includes those that were acquired through purchase as well as the additions for growth.

"The number in service at the end of the year was 1,061,571," says the Report. It goes on to point out that 170,983 telephones were connected during the year and 118,262 were disconnected. A total of 67,413 people moved from one address to another involving telephone changes and 35,571 people had the telephone locations changed on their premises.

While the Telephone Company operated more than one million telephones through the switchboards at the close of last year, this "does not represent the complete scope of Bell service within the state," says the report. At that time there were 228 telephone companies of separate ownership and management connected with Bell switchboards for interchange of service. These separate telephone systems served 221,592 telephones and there were, in addition, 12,215 telephones on service lines owned by mutual associations, connecting with the Bell lines.

TELEPHONE CALLS OF ALL KINDS INCREASE

Local, Toll and Long Distance Calls of Bell Co. Show Material Gain in 1927

Telephone Calls Have Almost Doubled Since 1918

An average daily volume of 4,574,233 local calls were connected daily during 1927 through the switchboards of The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania. This was the statement in the Annual Report of the Telephone Company just released.

In comparing these figures with the preceding year, they show an increase of approximately four per cent. For the same period there was an average daily volume of 231,344 toll calls or an increase of nine per cent. over 1926.

"In addition," says the Annual Report, "there originated during the year from the telephones of the Company, 4,738,687 long distance calls to points outside the state."

Aside from Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, the local calls were highest during the period in the following cities: Scranton ranked highest with 184,000 local calls daily. The other cities in order were: Wilkes-Barre, 133,000; Harrisburg, 121,000; Altoona, 90,000; Lancaster, 73,000; Mckeesport, 67,000; New Castle, 66,000; Chester, 52,000; Sharon, 53,000 and Williamsport, 52,000.

STATE HELPS FIGHT OF THE HANDICAPPED

MANY PROVE ABILITY

HARRISBURG, Mar. 30—Approximately 1300 handicapped children are enrolled in the six special schools maintained or aided by the State for the training of blind and deaf children, according to data compiled by the Department of Public Instruction.

The type of instruction, which is both academic and manual, prepares them for fifteen vocations. These institutions, recognized as ranking among the best in the country, are doing their work so effectively that blind and deaf children are rising above their handicaps and are filling places of responsibility in the trades and professions.

Students in institutions for the deaf show preferences for trades and many graduates are numbered among the State's most efficient carpenters, tailors, masons, painters, bakers, printers and typists. Three of these graduates are employed as linotype operators for leading city newspapers.

While some of the graduates from blind institutions are following these same trades, others are engaged at basketry, chair caning, piano tuning and poultry raising. After their graduation, it is not uncommon to find blind students entering colleges and universities. Some prepare for osteopathy, law, the ministry, teaching, insurance, business and music. One of the music graduates has become so eminent an organist that his services are sought by lyceum bureaus and concert managers.

Legislation, enacted by the 1925 Assembly, makes the education of the blind and deaf compulsory between the ages of six and sixteen. The cost of the education is borne jointly by the State and school district—the State paying three-fourths and the district, one-fourth.

Pennsylvania Institution For the Instruction of the Blind, Overbrook, Philadelphia	246
Western Pennsylvania School For the Blind, Pittsburgh	135
Pennsylvania Institution For the Deaf, Mt. Airy, Philadelphia	511
Western Pennsylvania School For the Deaf, Pittsburgh	298
Pennsylvania State Oral School For the Deaf, Scranton	85
Home For Training in Speech of Deaf Children Before They Are of School Age, Philadelphia	60

State News

HARRISBURG, Pa., Mar. 30—(INS)—In the hope of reforesting those stretches of Pennsylvania where surrounding conditions make natural growth difficult, the Department of Forests and Waters today made public the results of a number of experiments which had been conducted in Western Pennsylvania. Department officials believe as a result of the experiments that only the native hardwoods will serve the purpose and then only after considerable replanting.

Experimental plots were located in Cambria, and Indiana counties. In each instance they were located so as to be the target for the smoke and fumes of industries, railroads or coke ovens. In some cases the seed was sown and seedlings planted where there was practically no natural growth.

Although more than two bushels of ailanthus seed were used practically none of them germinated. Germination of white ash seed was low but sufficient to lead to the belief that it is one of the few trees which can be used successfully under such adverse conditions.

Scotch pine seedlings were used but few of them survived when in direct line of industrial fumes. On one plot near Johnstown about 70 per cent survived but the majority of those living were sheltered by topographic conditions. Many of the trees never gave an indication of surviving and in a short time appeared as if burned by fire.

In some sections of southeastern Pennsylvania black locust thrives satisfactorily under conditions similar to those existing at the experimental plots.

Sisters Over the Skin

Kipling's famous "Colonel's Lady and Judy O'Grady," who were "sisters under the skin," are sisters over the skin as well in these days when the latest and most authoritative fashion news is available to every woman in the advertising columns of her newspaper.

Today no woman's clothes need proclaim the thickness of her pocketbook. The advertisements which meet the eye of the woman accustomed to social secretaries and liveried chauffeurs, and guide her in her selection of a wardrobe—likewise greet and guide the young lady who earns her own living. And both may be thankful that advertising has forever banished the dowdy, frumpy "female."

Where will the waistline be? Bows at the cuffs, or not? "V" neck or square? How long—or how short? What materials does Paris favor? What colors are "being worn"? Those questions are answered for everyone—in the advertisements. And with the answers are coupled the names of manufacturers and merchants who make and sell materials, trimmings, accessories, on which you can rely. For those advertised names are advertised only because they are reliable. Otherwise you would probably never hear of them.

You can follow the advertised styles with assurance—and buy by advertised names with profit

Chicks get from Purina LIFE and GROWTH—

FROM the time chicks step out of their shells, they look to you for protection and care to live and thrive. Poultry yard facts show that more than 90% of the chicks fed Purina Startena and Purina Baby Chick Chow live and grow rapidly into plump broilers and early laying pullets. Isn't it sound business economy to feed Purina, which saves 9 out of 10, instead of average mixtures on which 5 out of 10 chicks die? SLANT ON $200,000 CLUB IS INTERESTING

(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles by Davis J. Walsh, dealing with developments in various major league training camps. Other articles of the series will follow.)

By Davis J. Walsh
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

CLEARWATER, Fla., Mar. 28.—The writer had the privilege today of gazing upon a $200,000 ball club. At least, the payroll said it was a $200,000 outfit, a fact that might be deemed sufficient to prompt the late Charley Ebbets to turn turtle in his tomb. For the Brooklyn Dodgers used to be Charley's ball club and this once was Charley's money.

Years ago in a moment of eloquence Charley delivered himself of the dictum that baseball still was in its infancy. What he probably meant was that it soon was to go into its second childhood. When a ball club which holds the head of the second division as its abiding ambition, is willing to pay and does pay Arnold Statz a salary of $10,000 for the season, the faculty of reason fairly totters on its throne.

Mr. Wilbert Robinson, the open-faced Swiss movement president-manager of the club, seems to be the sponsor for this policy of prodigality although Charley himself was hardly the human stringency that popular fable would have him. However, it is to be doubted that he would have listened very attentively to Statz's $10,000 talk of salesmanship. Nor would he have paid Max Carey and Bill Doak anything more than police attention anyhow, not $10,000 each. It is an open question whether Jess Petty would have shaken him loose for $15,000. He probably would have guarded Dazzy Vance his $20,000, but I fear that the capitulation would have been marked by that spontaneous enthusiasm so noticeable in a man conceding a five-foot putt.

As for David J. Bancroft, player-manager of the 1927 Braves, Charley would have had him arrested if he had requested a $15,000 contract plus a $30,000 bonus, $45,000 in all. But Mr. Robinson says it is all right and as far as the rest of the world, including Bancroft, is concerned, that just about closes the transom.

Bancroft, as claimed, is the keyman of the club. If he is the Old Banny, which is to be doubted, he can and will make an infield out of any three men. The Braves say he has slipped beyond all reason, but Robbie only smiles at that crack. It is the latter's idea that Bancroft worried himself out of a job last year, a theory that isn't altogether sustained by the young man's age, which is thirty-five.

Infielders usually do not outlive that milestone.

However, even if he can't get off a watch crystal out there, he will be a prime necessity to the operation of a kid infield, and other members of which are Del Bissonette at first base; Jimmy Partridge at second and Harry Riconda at third. The latter has been up and down like a freight elevator but he had an encouraging year with Milwaukee this time and has shown enought down here to take the place away from Howard Freigan, of Dayton, Ohio, and Kansas City, who has had his fling with the Cubs and Cardinals.

D'Arcy Flowers, former Card, is available in case Bancroft bogs down, but Leo Bader, of Jacksonville and New Orleans; "Chuck" Corgan, Kansas City, and Hal Lee, of Mississippi College, are not long for this life, apparently. Bill Rhiel, another infielder, already has been sent back to Atlanta—the ball club, not the penitentiary.

Bissonette, who once deemed himself a pitcher with the Yankees, hit so well in the International League last year that he has been wished into Babe Herman's job at first base, and Herman informed, much to his surprise, that he is an outfielder. Somehow, this fact also had managed to escape general notice during the fortunately few occasions Herman essayed the outfield at Ebbet's Field, but then, Babe ever was a bloke to conceal things. In fact, he permanently lost a lot of ball games around first base last year. He is hitting like a fool down here at that.

The added punch of which Mr. Robinson speaks so glibly is supposed to be furnished by Bissonette and Bancroft in the infield and by Al Tyson, the new addition to the outfield. Albert couldn't hit the size of his board bill with the Giants but he went well in Buffalo and so he is back with the only club that will pay $10,000 to a man who hits .265. Tyson is and will be the regular left fielder until further notice. Carey, no longer a hitter, will be in right, with Harvey Hendricks, always a hitter but never a fielder, available in utility roles but as outfielder and first baseman. Statz, one of the finest defensive men the game affords, will ream center field. Overton Tremper, former University of Pennsylvania man, has a chance to stay, if he hits, but Dan Taylor, of Memphis and Lash, Penn., has little or none.

The old line of catchers, Hank Deberry, Butch Henline and Charley Hargraves, again is around and about, which probably means that Hugh Wise, Purdue University, won't be for long. If he goes, he merely will be following Alonzo Lopez, of Jacksonville, who took a one-way ride, by request, the other day.

DECATHLON MARVELS READY FOR OLYMPICS

Call for practice has gone out to America's decathlon candidates for the Olympics at Amsterdam. Chief Fait Elkins (left) is national championship holder and an outstanding prospect. Emerson Norton (right) is a husky from Kansas who will make them all hustle to make the team. Lawson Robertson (center) has made it very clear that there will be two try-outs this year, one at the Penn games at Philadelphia and another in July. He expects to keep the men in condition by this method. (International Newsreel)
